BIRCHALL WILL HANG.

LORD STANLEY DECLINES TO INTERFERE.

A Great Racing Course to be Established at San Francisco—Fatal Railway Accident—Portland Pickpockets—Disaster on the Lakes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—H. R. Lang, a waiter, shot himself last night while despondent, and died from the effect of the wound this morning.

John Barke, another waiter, died this morning from an overdose of morphine, taken to induce sleep.

A Blaze at Denver.

DENVER, Nov. 6.—The furniture manufactory and warehouse owned by James Kilpatrick, the largest of its kind in the west, was burned to-day. The loss was $70,000, only partially covered by insurance.

Coal Sheds Burned.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The large coal sheds of Edward Levenworth were burned this morning, with a loss of $25,000. There was a partial insurance.

Collision Without Fatal Result.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Nov. 6.—About 5 o'clock last evening the south-bound passenger train collided with an incoming freight about one mile south of this city. The train hands jumped and saved themselves. The engines were damages considerably but no one was hurt. The accident was the result of a misunderstanding of orders.

A Failure in Leather.

READING, Pa., Nov. 6.—The sheriff levied on the stock of R. S. Schweriner, proprietor of a shoe factory here, on executions aggregating $14,000, which were held by New York and Philadelphia parties.

Portland Pickpockets.

PORTLAND, Nov. 7.—Officers Day and Hutchins captured, to-day, two bold and desperate pickpockets, but not until a fierce and dangerous struggle had taken place. The names of the captured men are Sam Rodgers and Thomas Coleman. These men were caught in the very act of attempting to pick the pockets of an old man who was on the Sothern Pacific train, which just came into the depot here. They violently jostled and crowded the old man in the car, and during the confusion one attempted to put his hands into his pockets. Hutchins, who was on the same train looking for the thieves, drew a pistol and seized hold of one of the robbers. A desperate struggle followed, which finally resulted in the overpowering and capture of the men. Coleman was overpowered and captured without much difficulty by the passengers, but Rodgers fought Hutchins like a perfect tiger. He drew a pistol, and doubtless would have shot the officer had not the latter finally succeeded in wrenching the weapon from him. When taken to jail both Coleman and Rodgers were found to be armed to the teeth. Both are desperadoes. They are believed to be two of a gang of five who have been committing various burglaries and pocket pickings about this city during the past few weeks. Several persons have been robbed on trains here very recently. Both men are sullen, and refuse to talk. There was a great crowd in the car, but fortunately no shots were fired. There is no doubt as to the guilt of the arrested parties.

Fraud Said to be Used.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Congressman Jos. G. Cannon sends the following to the Associated Press in reply to a query as to the election:

"Most of the members of the Farmers' Alliance voted with their respective parties, but enough farmer Republicans threw away their votes to weaken the party. The school questions told against the Republicans heavily. The Democratic candidates for the legislature made all the pledges asked by certain churches assuring other Democrats that they did not mean anything by it. The pledges gave them a large vote, especially from the Germans, who voted the straight Democratic ticket. The McKinley bill, on discussion, was approved by the Rupublicans, but the campaign was so short that all could not be reached. Democratic and mugwump misrepresentation as to its provisions and effect, with these other forces, were sufficient to work defeat. The tariff law, as its effects are felt, will prove a tower of strength instead of weakness. Republicans, especially farmers, believe in the American system of protection. The Republicans will clear their decks for action in 1892 and carry the country. The Democrats cannot succeed a second time by falsehood and fraud."

C. P. R. Accident.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 7.—In a collision on the Canadian Pacific, about three miles from here, between a mail train from Toronto and a wild engine, one engineer and two others were killed.

Floods at St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 6.—This city is again suffering from floods caused by severe storms and heavy winds which have picked up the waters of the gulf and river and forced them up into the city. Great damage has already been done and the situation is becoming worse hourly.

A Tariff for Revenue.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A Madrid dispatch says that the government of Spain is in very bad financial straits and that the proposed high tariff is not so much a measure designed for protection of home industries as to raise revenue to carry on the functions of the government.

BIRCHALL WILL HANG.

Governor-General Stanley Will Not Interfere With the Law's Ukase.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—At 11 o'clock today His Excellency the Governor-General, after reading over the carefully prepared memorandum of Sir John Thompson to the privy council in the case of Birchall, and after reading over the report of the judge, and the whole of the evidence in connection there with, gives it as his decision that he will not interfere with the sentence of the court, and therefore the law will take its course. Birchall will be hanged in the precincts of Woodstock jail on the 14th instant.

DISASTER ON THE LAKES.

A Ship and Cargo Valued at $150,000 Destroyed by Fire.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 6.—The steamer S. P. Reynolds, from Buffalo to Toledo, loaded with coal and jute, went on Colchester reef on the Canadian shore, 40 miles northwest of Toledo, during a blinding snow storm lafe last night. The jute in the cargo caught fire, and cargo and ship will be a total loss. The vessel is worth $100,000, and the cargo half as much more. No lives were lost.

NEW RACING CENTRE.

Joseph Thompson, the Australian, to Establish a Track at San Francisco.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Among the Teutonic's long list of passengers who reached New York yesterday, was Jos. Thompson, whose name for many years has been famous among racing men all over the world. Recently it has been reported on apparently good authority that he was at the head of a combination which proposed building near San Francisco a race track that should throw Morris Park, if not the new Monmouth track into ignomy. Mr. Thompson held a small sized levee at the Hoffman House, and his arrival was scarcely two hours old before he found himself surrounded by a crowd of friends, old and new, and including some of the best known racing men in the east. "It is undoubtedly true that I have a project for opening a new race track at San Francisco," he said, "but I am the head of the company. Frankly, the speculation, for that is what it amounts to, is entirely my own. I have been requested by many leading citizens of San Francisco to go out there and look over the ground, and tell them what are the prospects of succes for fully starting a new racing center in that part of the country. I suppose that it will not be denied that racing in the west has for many years been at a low ebb. It is my present intention to inaugurate a new era of racing, to make the western turf purer and cleaner, and to accomplish this I shall endeavor to secure half of the working committee, composed of the highest social men, whose character shall place them beyond suspicion, and who shall have full control of racing. Unless I can secure the co-operation of such a committee, I shall abandon the project as being impossible. I shall make the track one of the most popular in the country, at the same time introducing all the best features of the Australian system." "Would you introduce the standing start," asked a reporter. "I can't say," was the reply. "Undoubtedly the standing start has its advantage. It is impossible for a horse to be left at the post as at present. However, nothing is settled as yet. If energy, liberality and many years experience go for anything, I shall succeed in creating a new racing centre on the Pacific coast, and it will be my endeavor by the means of rich prizes to reverse the present order of things and induce the leading eastern owners to take their best horses to the west."

Poachers and Poachers

The American newspapers are always ringing the changes on the word "poacher," as used in connection with Victoria sealers. If the ready writers were to stop and think, they might recollect that the only vessel known to have poached, or that tried to take seals illegally last season was the C. H. White, an American schooner, which was fired upon by the Russian guards at the Copper Islands. Poachers, forsooth!

A Decided Hint.

A family incident occurred last night which has a comical side. A young man of this city, well known in aquatic circles, has a sister and brother-in-law with whom he is not on the best of terms, a legal disagreement having come between them. The sister and her husband have of late been living in the young man's house, and all the pressing invitations he could give have failed to induce them to leave. Last night, however, he gave a very decided hint. While the couple were out of the house, the young man took out the bedroom furniture and deposited it across the street. Just what happened when the discovery was made that the room was uninhabitable, is not chronicled.

An Important Decision.

A Montreal trade journal says: A case of considerable importance to the liquor trade and general public, was decided on Monday by Judge Desnoyers. Sometime ago one Z. Poupart was charged with infringement of the trade mark of Messrs. James Hennessy & Co. by selling liquor bearing the names of J. Henri Say & Cie., and J. Hurtubise & Cie., on labels strongly resembling those of Hennessy & Co. Judgment was reserved and has just been delivered, Poupart being convicted and sentenced to a fine of $150 and costs, the judge intimating that it was only on account of a possibility of the law not being clear to the defendant that the full penalty (which we understand to be two years imprisonment) was not enforced. During the trial it came out that every compounder of liquor in Canada is bound to put his name and address and that he is the manufacturer of the bottle. The importance of this to the unskilled purchaser is manifest, as should the law be enforced, he would be able to distinguish between genuine imported spirit and stuff, often far from wholesome, put up here.

M'KINLEYISM KILLED.

GREAT VICTORY FOR THE DEMOCATIC PARTY.

Extraordinary Gains in the Northern States—The Republicans Crushed in Their Strongholds—Congress Democratic by Over 100 Majority.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The latest returns indicate a Democratic majority of two in joint ballot in the legislature. Official returns from twenty congressional districts will not be known for some time. These, however, will make no change in the results reported last night; unless Combs, Dem., proves to be elected in Brooklyn, New York's delegation in the Fifty-second Congress, if Combs is defeated, will be 20 Democrats, 14 Republicans. It is the reverse in the present congress, Republicans 20, Democrats 14.

Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—Yesterday's election changed considerably the political complexion of Missouri. The Democrats send a full delegation to congress, with one exception. They elect the state ticket, and will have a joint ballot in the legislature by a large majority. The returns are coming in slowly, and several days will elapse before the official vote will be given. The Democrats, he said, would have a majority of probably 75 on joint ballot, in the legislature, and had elected their state ticket by at least 40,000. If the Democrats have a majority on joint ballot in the legislature, it will assure the return of Senator West.

Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The Republican state committee, on unofficial returns received from 75 counties and the remainder estimated, claim a Republican plurality of 14,000 on the state ticket. The committee conceded the defeat of McKinley, Rep., for Congress by about 200. The Democratic candidates in the other close congressional districts received majorities ranging from 500 upwards, except Cosgrove, of Cincinnati, who is defeated. One of the most remarkable Democratic gains was in the 11th district, where Patterson, Dem., is elected by 3100, with a gain of 1500 over last fall's vote. The Republican committee concedes that the delegation to Congress will stand seven Republicans to fourteen Democrats.

Michigan.

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—Up to 11 P. m. indications are that the Democrats have elected the governor by about 10,000 plurality and the rest of the state ticket by a substantial vote. At the last election the Republicans returned the state ticket by about 20,000 majority. The state Senate will be close, but up to the present time shows a Democratic majority of 3. The Republicans concede the House, which the Democrats claim by 15 majority. At the last session both houses were Republican, the Senate by a majority of 14, and the House by 37. Late returns make it reasonably safe to predict the election of the Democratic state ticket by about 10,000 majority. In the legislature the House will be Democratic on a fusion vote with the Patrons of Industry. The Senate is close with probably a Republican majority.

Iowa.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—Returns from one-third of the state show that the Democrats gain sufficient to wipe out the Republican majority of two years ago and give a small Democratic majority.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—Unofficial returns from fifty counties on the head of the ticket received by the Register show a net Republican gain of 125 over last year. If the gain continues in the same ratio, the Republican state ticket will be elected by 3,000 to 6,000 majority, with the possible election of the railway commissioner.

Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—The Republican candidate for governor beaten; six out of seven Republican congressional candidates defeated; Senator Ingalls' re-election a subject of grave doubt—that is the situation in Kansas. There was a landslide, a regular avalanche, in Kansas. Eighty-two thousand Republican majority was overwhelmed by a resistless force. The Farmer's Alliance did it and it was a genuine surprise.

For the first time in many years the Republican congressional delegation is broken, and broken to fragments. Only one Republican escaped wreck, and that was Funston from the second district. The Democrats were successful in the first district, electing Moonlight over Broderick by 10,000 majority. The Kansas delegation will stand: Democrats 1, Republicans 1, Alliance 5.

Another surprise lies in the possible defeat for re-election of Senator Ingalls, whose term expires in 1891. The Alliance and Democrats waged a bitter war against him, and the majority of the districts contained one of their candidates against the Republican candidate. The result is the certain election of ninety-five Alliance and Democratic legislators, against thirty Republicans. Some of the latter may vote for Ingalls, but his opponents claim those newly elected who oppose him, together with the opposition holdovers, will give Seerby ninety votes, or a majority of six against him. This now looks to be a correct statement of the Ingalls situation, but it is liable to modification.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 6.—At midnight the Republican central committee concedes the election of the entire Farmers' Alliance ticket, with the possible exception of Willets, candidate for governor. The committee concedes that the opposition to Ingalls in the legislature will have a majority.

Nebraska.

The returns are very incomplete, but the contest is close. The latest returns indicate that prohibition is defeated in the state by over 40,000.

Montana.

HELENA, Nov. 5.—The contest between Thomas H. Carter, Republican, and W. W. Dixon, Democrat, for congress is so close that, the official count can determine who is elected. The Democrats stoutly claim that Dixon is elected, but returns arriving today cut his majority down to almost nothing, and the best advices from outside districts indicate that Carter will be elected by a slight majority.

Illinois.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Never in the history of Illinois politics have the tickets of the representative parties been scratched to such an extent as is the present election.

Throughout the southern part of the state, to which principally is confined the strength of the Farmers' Association, the Republican state nominees appear to have lost heavily. The Congressmen elected, so far as returns show, are Republicans 8, Democrats 11.

The Dakotas.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 5.—In North Dakota the Republicans elected the congressman and state ticket by from 3,000 to 4,000.

In South Dakota both committees claim the state, but the returns do not seem to justify the claim on the part of the Democrats. Woman suffrage is defeated by 8,000. The vote of the state will be 5,000 less than last year.

Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 5.—The latest returns from the state indicate a plurality of 20,000 and upwards for George W. Peck. The Democrats elect a majority of the assemblymen and state senators. In the lower house they will have a majority of thirty or over, and in the senate a majority of two. They elect seven out of nine congressmen.

Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Complete but unofficial returns from every county in the state give Pattison, Dem., for governor, a plurality of 16,299 over Delamater, Rep. The latest returns from twenty-eight congressional districts of the state show the election of eighteen Republicans and ten Democrats. The present delegation from this state is twenty-one Republicans and seven Democrats.

Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The vote for governor shows an overwhelming Democratic vote, who gain five congressmen. The congressional delegation will stand 7 Democrats and five Republicans.

California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Up to this afternoon the vote had been completely canvassed in but eighty-six precincts in this city. These gave Markham, Rep., for governor, 7,764, Pond, Dem., 7,299. The total vote is seventy-nine precincts throughout the state, including the eighty-six precincts in this city, give Markham 57,859, Pond 50,778, and Markham plurality of 6,681. These constitutes the returns from a little over one-third of the total number of precincts in the state.

The Democrats concede the election of the entire state Republican ticket, and in this city the Republicans have undoubtedly elected Sanderson mayor, and have also elected the entire municipal and county ticket, with the possible exception of sheriff, indicating a change of fully 7,000 votes in this city in favor of the Republicans.

There are twenty hold-over members of the State senate, of whom twelve are Republicans and eight democrats. Twenty senators and eighty assemblymen were elected yesterday. The returns are too incomplete to make any accurate estimate, but with the present Republican majority in the state Senate the Republicans are sure of a safe majority on joint ballot, and the election of a Republican to succeed Leland Stanford is assured.

Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 5.—The Democrats have swept the state, their ticket being elected by large majorities. There will be ten Democratic congressmen to one Republican—a gain of ten for the Democrats.

New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 5.—There is no doubt that McKinney, Dem., is elected to Congress in the first district. The Democrats claim Daniel's election in the second, while the Republican's say Moore is chosen. The legislature is very close. Its control will undoubtedly be determined by special elections. There was no choice of governor by the people.

Deleware.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov., 5.—The next legislature will stand: Senate, Democrats 5, Republicans 4; House, Democrats 14; Republicans 7. There is no United States senator to be elected.

New Jersey.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Later returns give the Democrats increased majorities in both branches of the legislature. The Senate will stand: Democrats 13, Republicans 7; assembly, Democrats 43, Republicans 17.

North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 5.—The congressional delegation stands eight Democrats and one Republican. The legislature is largely Democratic.

New Mexico.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Nov. 5.—It is claimed that Joseph, Democrat, has carried ten of twelve counties in New Mexico, and that the Democrats will have a majority of the Senate and House for the first time in twenty-four years.

Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—As stated last night, Maryland sends a solid Democratic delegation of six to congress.

Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 5.—Further returns from the election leave no doubt that the ten Democratic congressmen are elected.

A Lasting Fragrance.

Speaking of George Washington, naturally suggests the name of Martha, his wife. She was a woman of many estimable qualities, and her name still lingers like a sweet incense on the altar of American patriotism. Her fame is also perpetuated in the name of one of the choicest perfumes of the day—Martha Washington—manufactured by Theo. Ricksecker, New York, and sold by Cochrane & Munn, who make a specialty of fine perfumes.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

BY ANNA KATHERINE GREEN.

CHAPTER X.

JULIUS MOLESWORTH.

A square, dull looking room with two dim windows facing a high brick wall; a large table covered with phials, boxes of instruments, writing materials and a few books; a black hair-cloth sofa and two chairs; a dingy carpet and a ceiling which has been unwhitened for years; at the table and confronting the only bright thing in the room, a hard coal fire, the stern, immovable figure of a man buried in the deepest thought. Such is Julius Molesworth's office, and such the appearance of Julius Molesworth himself on the afternoon of this, his most momentous day.

Let us examine this dull interior a little closer. It is the reception-room, the home, the all of this sombre and inscrutable man. The folding bed drawn up against the further wall shows this. Yet within the space of its four bare walls not an article of beauty nor an object of taste is to be seen. He did not care for such, he had not the money to buy such if he had wished, and as for the mementos from grateful patients or the tokens of affection from admiring friends, chiefly ladies, which he sometimes received, he would thank the giver for them with cool but careful politeness, and then at the first opportunity toss them into the fire, where he would not even linger long enough to see them burn. He had no wish to preserve any token of woman's weakness about him. Woman's strength on the contrary aroused his admiration. Among the books which none too closely filled the shelves of the old-fashioned book case at the opposite end of the room, was one, a Bible (the only volume in the collection that was not purely medical in its character), which bore on its fly-leaf in firm, but strictly feminine writing, these lines:

"Live poor, go hungry, go cold, suffer any amount of privation and discomfort, but do not fail in what you undertake, nor be satisfied with anything less than the first excellence."

The book had been his mother's and those words had been written for him. He loved his mother though he had never kissed her after his first youth was passed, and he made these words of hers the motto of his life. Had he mentally added anything to them from his own experience? Let us scrutinize his face as the leaping fire-light breaks over it and see if we can determine.

But first what is he brooding over? Such intentness and absorption argue the existence of some heavy subject on his mind. Though we know he has enough to think upon, though we are conscious of a protentous figure slowly approaching this house, whose errand, if known, would lift that bowed head in dismay, is it the death of Mildred Farley or its possible results on his own life, which enchains his present thoughts and gives to his brooding and powerful countenance that look of anxious wrestling with some hidden hope or fear? We will watch him for a moment, studying those features which some one said had not a regular line to recommend them—and see if his eyes turn at the faint creak of the door opening behind him, or if his lips break their firm line as the watchful gaze of one who looks nowhere lightly, falls on his abstracted face. At this first moment he is quiet, and the charm of his reverie is unbroken. We have time to note the heavy brow with its line of dark hair, the large but not unhandsome nose, the smoothly shaven cheeks and the firm set mouth about whose corners no sweetness lurks; but we cannot see the eyes for they are partly closed, and it is in them that his power lies, so we have been told. Even now there is a glint beneath his eyelashes which moves us strangely if we are feminine and susceptible; a certain mysterious brightness that is not expressive of tenderness, nor even of genius, but which is controlling in its nature, and together with a well knit form that is at times capable of exercising great strength, gives to this otherwise personally ungifted being an attractiveness which many an Adonis might envy. Yet it is not an attractiveness that invites. Those who succumb to his influence do it unsought.

The fairest woman decked with all the graces that create enchantment about the female form, might hesitate long before intruding her beauty upon the sight of this man as he sits here lost in exacting thought.

Though she loved him—though she longed with all her passionate spirit to touch with caressing hand the loose dark lock that falls somewhat carelessly over his forehead, she would ask herself if she dared, before she allowed her hand to steal to his brow or her lips to breathe his name. Alone, sufficient to himself, he battles against his evil angels or fights with his good ones, without assistance, comfort or diversion; his one desire to know his profession thoroughly, his one ambition to be recognized in it as the greatest physician of the age, the most learned and the most successful.

For this he had struggled from boyhood. For this he had borne cold and hunger and poverty as his mother advised. For this he had been content with present insignificance, confident that the day would yet dawn when his fame amongst the respectable poor of the east side would spread to those precincts of wealth and intelligence where success is followed by distinction, and distinction is followed by power.

Indeed he was not sure but that this fortunate day was at hand. He had only recently been placed in charge of a case so peculiar and complicated, that success in the treatment could not fail to yield him the fame he so coveted. And success was going to be his; he felt it, he knew it. Though some of the most eminent physicians in the city had attempted a cure and failed, he had no hesitation in believing that a certain remedy which he had discovered would reach this very case and produce results that would astonish the whole medical profession. To be sure it would require courage to prescribe it and an indomitable will to pursue the course of treatment which he felt to be necessary. But there was no lack of these qualities in his nature; while his zeal was so great that he felt that nothing could daunt him, and nobody stand in his way. The opportunity of his life was before him, and he felt bound to improve it. Was he meditating upon this case and determining just what his course of treatment should be, as he sat there before the fire? His gradually lightening brow seemed to say yes, and the startling fervor with which he suddenly broke the spell which bound him and arose, told of a secret found rather than of a secret buried.

"Yes, it is—," he cried, "in small but oft repeated doses. I would willingly stake my life upon it." And raising his head, he suddenly discerned in the looking-glass which hung opposite him over the mantelpiece, a face turned towards him from the open door, which though quiet and composed in every feature, had yet that something in it which tells the observer, that expected or unexpected, his hour has come, and the hopes which he has cherished are vainer than the vainest show.

He saw this face, I say, but he did not at once turn. He had a shock to get over, a course to be resolved upon. When he did turn, it was with courtesy and a slight show of surprise. "Excuse me," said he, "I do not receive patients at this hour."

"I am not a patient," returned Gryce.

The doctor gazed slowly around his room. He did not love it, but it held his all, and there was not an object within it but spoke to his soul of some cherished ambition, or secret all-absorbing wish.

"But you have some business? I recollect your face, but I cannot place you."

"My face is of no account, my business is. Dr. Molesworth, you are a physician of an unrelenting school; the fewest words will answer with you. I am an officer armed with a warrant, and I have come to arrest you as the suspected murderer of Mildred Farley."

The doctor, who had been standing with his back to the table, turned slightly and took up a paper lying there. There were a few words written on it, and he read them before he gave the detective a slight bow.

"I am charged with placing you in custody," continued the detective. "But if there is anything you wish to do——"

"I would like a half-hour," the doctor responded, firmly. "I have a case——" his voice broke. "Don't interrupt me," he said, laying down the paper he held. "I have some memoranda to make. They are important; a matter of life or death to one poor woman."

"Write," said the detective, "I am no gabbler."

And Dr. Molesworth wrote, calmly, thoughtfully, with entire absorption in his subject, or so it seemed to the eye who saw all, though it dwelt on a phial marked poison that stood on the doctor's table. When, the last word written, the physician turned, and handing him the paper said:

"It will probably prove unintelligible to you, but it can be easily read by any physician. Keep it till I ask you for it."

Then he turned to his table and wrote three or four letters, all of which he handed over to the other for inspection. When all this was done, he rose, and confronting the detective, observed:

"Now I am ready to go with you. You have arrested me on a suspicion of murder; for this you must have had good reasons, better reasons than appeared at the inquest. I will not question them, I will only say that your evidence against me is circumstantial, must be, since I did not do this deed; you are doing me a great injustice by this action, and my patients an irreparable harm. I will only ask one favor in return for the possible wrong you may do me. This is the privilege of a short interview with a person I am willing to name, and whom I only desire to see in your presence, and if you wish, in your hearing."

"And may I inquire who this person is?" returned Mr. Gryce.

"A physician and a friend of mine; Dr. Walter Cameron, of No. — Fifth avenue."

No name could have awakened a greater surprise in Mr. Gryce's mind. The two doctors were practitioners in the same school, and Dr. Cameron had owned to an acquaintance with Molesworth. Yet he was the last person Mr. Gryce expected to hear mentioned in this connection.

"But Dr. Cameron is out of town; he has gone with his bride to Washington, and I do not think he has yet returned."

A shadow passed over the other's stern face.

"I must see him nevertheless," he insisted. "You have not yet shown me your warrant. Consider me as a man under your surveillance merely, and go with me to Washington. You will not regret it. You are following the commands of a superior; let me see him."

"You shall, but do you object to telling me what you want of Dr. Cameron?"

"I could not make you understand, but—did you ever have any great ambition?"

Mr. Gryce smiled.

"You may talk to me as if I had had," he rejoined.

"Listen then. I am on the verge of attaining mine. I have a case, peculiar, striking in its complications, known to all the profession. It has hitherto baffled the skill of every man who has attempted to handle it; even Dr. ——'s interest was aroused and he gave it his best attention, to no avail, and now I, I know that I have found the requisite remedy, discovered the necessary course of treatment. You will find it all on that paper. And with this prospect before me, this certainty I may say, you ask me what I want of Dr. Cameron."

"I think I understand," said Mr. Gryce; "but I want to know just what ground I is standing on."

"Well, then, if I must lose my liberty, this poor woman must not lose her life for science the prospect of a valuable discovery. Though I should have preferred to make my own experiments, I shall be at comparative ease if I can get some one upon whose judgment I can thoroughly rely to make them for me. But where is the man I can trust? I can think of but one, Dr. Cameron. To him, then, I wish to consign the case and immediately. Is there any hope of my wishes being complied with?"

Mr. Gryce closed the pen-knife, whose sharp blade he had been considering through this long speech, and silently raised his head.

"Are the suspicions against me too strong for the display of indulgence?" persisted the physician.

"We will go to the superintendent," decided Mr. Gryce.

Dr. Molesworth bowed his thanks. As they turned to quit the room he touched the detective on the shoulder.

"Are you at liberty to tell me upon what evidence I have been arrested?"

Mr. Gryce's mouth grew stern.

"That is the province of the district attorney. I am an arm of the law, and not the mouth."

Dr. Molesworth said no more.

A carriage was at the door and they rode to police headquarters. In half an hour they emerged, and told the driver to take them to Jersey City.

The journey to Washington was decided upon.

As Mr. Gryce was buying the tickets, Dr. Molesworth whispered in his ear:

"One thing is requisite. We must surprise the doctor in his room. Promise me you will take him unawares—as you did me."

"We will surprise him," the detective replied, "I have no wish to do anything else."

Did he anticipate making any discoveries in Washington?

PECULIAR PIGMIES.

Rare and Diminutive Members of the Animal Kingdom.

Ponies as Small as Sheep—The Sacred Bull of India—Reverence Paid the Mild-Eyed Creature by the Natives—Other Freaks of Nature.

In one of the zoological gardens of Europe a collection of animal pigmies was exhibited some years ago, and, perhaps, an assemblage of animals never attracted more attention, especially from the young folks.

The creatures that constituted this exhibition were not dwarfs, but merely forms that were extremely small naturally. There was a pony that once belonged to the Czar of Russia and so small and cunning was it that not a few of the spectators considered it a sheep, as it was about the size of one of these animals. With its fluffy mane, long hair and tail it presented a very comical appearance, and as for hoofs, they were so small and delicate that shoes had never been made to fit them, but, as the pony's life was spent on a soft green, it probably did not feel the need of them.

Quite as remarkable as the pony was a deer with perfect horns that was hardly larger than a good-sized cat, and a baby deer that was so diminutive that the hat of one of the visitors would have covered it. This little creature was called the Hegoloh, and its home was in the deep forests of Abyssinia, near the Gambia river.

Another equally small deer, called the Dela, was of a rich fawn color, with white flanks and black ankles and a most expressive and intelligent face. The males only had horns, delicate little objects, of little or no use as a defense. The females had, instead, a curious bunch of hair upon the head that met at a point and seemed to resemble the top of a peaked night-cap.

One of the most interesting animals of this wonderful collection was a little fawn not over two feet high, with a coat of soft gray colors, great lustrous brown eyes and bearing upon its back a hump, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. In fact, it was an exact copy, except as to size, of the famous sacred bull of India, being very closely related to the animal that is still so revered in many parts of the Eastern country.

This little animal is of especial interest, as but one has ever been brought to this country, and they are so rare that they have never figured in natural history. The sacred animals are called Brahma bulls in the East, and the attention paid to their wants by the natives is a source of astonishment to all foreigners.

The sacred animal wanders through the streets of the great cities, receiving homage wherever it goes. If it meets a native carriage or cart in a narrow street the vehicle is carefully pulled to one side that the animal may not be disturbed, and if the mild-eyed creature should thrust its head into the carriage window it would be considered a piece of good fortune by the driver, while the European occupant would probably object.

The actions of these animals are extremely amusing. They wander slowly along, nibbling from the various stands that line the streets, helping themselves to goods offered for sale, winking and blinking lazily their great brown eyes, well knowing, perhaps, that they are safe from all objection on the part of the owners. Sometimes they stray into houses and lie down in front of doors, and until they choose to move the inmates can not pass out, as it would be sacrilege to step over the sacred animal.

A naturalist traveling in India one night came to a small town that offered so many inducements that he decided to remain for several days. Such a thing as an inn was unknown, but he finally obtained lodging in a private house with a man of the better class, who was quite well off—that is, he owned his house and land and several cattle.

The room occupied by the traveler was what would have been considered the hall of an ordinary house and not very private to say the least. A mat in the corner constituted his bed, but it was better than the jungle and he was very glad to get it.

He retired quite late and had been asleep for an hour or two when he was awakened by a clanking, as if a horse was coming into the house. Louder it grew, and hastily striking a light the traveler saw a sacred bull slowly coming along the hall. It approached to within a few feet of him, and after sniffing around laid down and was soon fast asleep. The next morning the owner of the house seemed to think the traveler had been much favored in having so sacred a room-mate.

These animals are found not only in India but are more or less common in Persia, Arabia and even Africa, where they are known as the zebra, the name applying to several species, ranging from large to small. In some localities they are used as beasts of burden, as we use oxen here, but generally they lead a life of luxury, waited on and tended by the superstitious natives.

Brothers and Sisters.

Brothers and sisters are all the better for sharing one another's studies and games up to a certain point. The girl who can handle a tennis racket and a croquet mallet vindicates her right to consideration. The boys will never speak of her as "only a girl," and she will be all the franker and none the less sweet for a healthy mixture of work and play. Good comradeship between brothers and sisters is a thing much to be desired; it saves the girls from prudery and the boys from boorishness, sweetens the natures of both, and acts by restraining every one from doing or saying what would be shameful in the eyes of the "other side."

Quill Toothpick Mill.

Quill toothpicks come from France. The largest factory in the world is near Paris, where there is an annual product of 20,000,000 quills. The factory was started to make quill pens, but when these went out of general use it was converted into a toothpick mill.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

CUPID'S MESSENGER.

How a Stern Parent Was Outwitted by Two Lovers.

Unknowingly He Acted as a Postman for Years Between His Daughter and Her Romeo—A Case of Love Laughing at Obstacles.

"'Love laughs at locksmiths,' no doubt of it," said a jolly old fellow in a car of the elevated railway the other day, as he spread his newspaper on his knees and leaned back to have a hearty laugh at the story of an elopement he had just been reading to a New York Tribune reporter. "This story," he continued, "reminds me of the courtship of myself and my wife, years ago, when I was 'prentice boy' to a crusty old leather merchant in 'the swamp.' He used to live over in Brooklyn and part of my meager wages were taken out in board and lodging at his house. Of course I left my bed in the attic and was sweeping out the counting-room long before his old nibs was up and I returned to my supper long after he had left the office for the day, yet I found time to fall in love with his pretty daughter for all that.

"She returned my feelings (I may say it without vanity, as we have been married now these thirty years) and I stepped around in the seventh Heaven for a time, but the old man soon spotted us and I narrowly escaped a severe thrashing at his hands for my presumption. I was banished from the house and Jane was locked up in her room on a bread and water diet for a week. Of course, we found a way to meet once in a very long time, but how to correspond as frequently as our yearning young hearts desired was a question that puzzled us for months. The post-office was no use for there was no house-to-house delivery in those days, and all the letters for the family came to the counting-house and passed under the old man's eye, and there was no one to act as a go-between to whom we dare confide the secret. 'Can't you hit some plan, Jane, dear?' I said in despair one day, on which we had managed to arrange for a clandestine meeting after a month spent without a glimpse of each other. 'Is there no one in your family or among your friends or servants whom you could trust to carry our notes back and forth?'

"'No one,' she replied, with a sigh. 'Have I not thought and thought and thought as much about it as you? But oh, I have it, I have it!' she exclaimed, suddenly clapping her hands. 'I have found some one at last,' and she burst into a peal of laughter so long that I could hardly control my impatience to hear her discovery.

"'Who is it? Tell me quick,' I said.

"'Papa,' she gasped, and went off into another fit of laughter.

"'Your father?' I said, astounded. 'Jane you're making cruel fun of me,' and I turned my back on her in a huff.

"'I am not, indeed, dear Billy,' she replied. 'I mean just what I say. You know papa's old overcoat that he will insist on wearing nine months in the year in spite of all that every body can say. Well, I'll hide a little note to you every day in the lining of the coat-tail, and when he hangs it up behind the counting-room door it will be easy for you to get it out and hide your answer in the same place. Oh! my, won't it be funny to think of papa, who has set his heart on keeping us apart, himself carrying our love letters back and forth from one to the other every day,' and she burst into another merry peal of laughter, in which I joined heartily this time.

"Well, we adopted the plan and it worked to a charm. The old boy was our faithful postman for years, and I often used to tremble as I thought of the possible consequences if he should ever discover one of my burning love missives in the tails of his rusty old coat. But he never did, and in due course of time I worked my way up to a place in his business where he could no longer ignore me or my claims. He was rather astonished one day, though, when I formally asked for his daughter's hand and assured him that she was willing if he was. He consented, but it was not until I was his junior partner and he was dandling his first grandson on his knee that we dared to tell him how for years he had played the part of Cupid's messenger when he thought he was acting the stern and careful parent."

M'LAUGHLIN HELD.

The Man Who Was Caught in Possession of Smuggled Opium Gives Bonds.

SEATTLE, Nov. 6.—United States Commissioner Emery yesterday afternoon heard the case of James J. McLaughlin, the man who was detected on board the Northern Pacific train with a valise of smuggled Opium in his hands some days since. The evidence was sufficient, and McLaughlin was held to answer before the United States district court. The defendant's friends offered cash bail in the sum of $500, but the court held that it had no right to receive the money.

It may seem strange that the name of T. M. Lyon should appear on the bond of McLaughlin as surety for the $500. Mr. Lyon didn't like the idea himself. Yet his many friends should think it queer that he was interesting himself in such a matter. But the fact is that McLaughlin's friends, wanting a responsible citizen on the bond, deposited the $500 cash with Mr. Lyon, who consented to sign the bond for that amount. McLaughlin's wife who was held on the same complaint, was discharged.

M'KINLEY'S DOWNFALL.

Happiness of the European Press Thereat —Comments Published.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—[New York Herald Cable.]—It is a very long time since so much interest was displayed in the American elections as is manifested today. Reports from the United States as to the probable closeness of the contests served to excite the American colony, while the fact of the ballot's real verdict on the McKinley bill sufficed to arouse extraordinary attention in the northern industrial centers. Evening editions of the newspapers were snapped up eagerly to find out how the fight was progressing. The Herald office was crowded with Americans anxious to learn the latest prospects of their particular party. Early in the day a notice placed on the bulletin board announcing that the Democrats had swept the country created a profound impression.

The Pall Mall Gazette printed a picture of McKinley, while all others published everything to be got concerning the contest. The elections were the one prevailing topic of conversation on the exchange and in northern England, and the repulse inflicted upon the Republican party has caused unbounded satisfaction.

The whole of the morning press make editorial allusions to the American elections. The Morning Post (Conservative) says: "If we may draw any conclusions from the striking result of Tuesday's elections in the United States, where politics are mainly the occupation of a select body of trained practitioners in electoral tactics, the conclusions from one election or another must always be drawn very cautiously. If the elaborate exertions of Tuesday have any reality they mean that had the Democratic party in 1888 possessed leaders of more discretion, nerve and resolution the strange episode of the last congress might never have occurred. The Americans are the best judges of their own tariff affairs, as of silver legislation. There is, however, hardly any doubt that the recklessness with which the Republican majority risked the most important interests of the people in their dealings with the currency has probably had a great deal to do with their present disaster."

The Standard (Conservative) says: "Though the country is just now decidedly opposed to the McKinley tariff, and may very likely remain so, its speedy repeal is not at all certain. To do away with it and to substitute, even a greatly modified form of free trade would require the concurrence of both President and Senate, and neither of these can yet be counted on. If, therefore, the enlightened and more truly patriotic fiscal policy is to finally prevail in America, it can only be after the struggle in which the present battle can only be regarded as a reconnaissance."

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(Associated Press) The Post, commenting on the American elections, thinks the silver bill had a great deal to do with the Republican disaster.

The News says: "The result if less sensational, though hardly less significant, than would be the conversion of the American people to Cobdenism. They are already tired of the preposterous McKinley act, and at the end of another year, when the new congress will probably meet, they will be so heartily sick that their repentance may carry them a long way in the direction of a revenue tariff."

The Telegraph says: "Americans have not been slow to recognize the danger of the McKinley tariff and to condemn it."

The Chronicle says: "Protection has received a blow from which it will not easily recover. The ill-advised extravagance of the McKinley bill will, it is not unlikely, narrow the line dividing the Democrats and Republicans."

The Standard says: "This is the Democratic answer of American citizens to the attempt to impose more than war tariff in a time of peace. The McKinley tariff has taught them a useful lesson."

The Times says: "The Republican rout is probably without parallel in American election annals. The significance of the Democratic victory in Pennsylvania can hardly be overestimated. It is sincerely to hoped that Mr. Blaine's view that the defeat of Delameter would be the deathblow to protection was correct. The American people have expressed their opinion on the recent Republican policy in very pronounced and unmistakable terms."

PARIS, Nov. 5.—[New York Herald Cable.]—The news that McKinley, the author of all the gloom that has spread over commercial Europe, was defeated, created a tremendous sensation in France and throughout the continent, where manufacturers and industrial employees alike know his name as being their arch enemy. The Herald office to-night is beseiged by envoys from Paris newspapers, all anxious to know if there are any doubts of the defeat of Major McKinley. The press simply bubbles over with humor. All the cartoonists are trying to familiarize themselves with the features of McKinley, in order to do him justice.

Bits of Witticism Printed with Wedding Announcements.

Bright Things Copied from Newspapers Published Within the Last Hundred Years—Puns Upon the Names of Brides and Grooms.

This collection of marriage announcements has been copied for the Detroit Free Press from old newspapers published within the last one hundred years, of which the compiler has examined between 200 and 300 volumes, selecting such as he thought worth repeating to the present generation. The old wits were famous for punning upon the names which they could utilize for the purpose, and many of these announcements will prove amusing.

In Concord, N. H., February 3, 1814, Isaac Hill, one of the editors of the Patriot, to Miss Susan Ayer, daughter of Captain Richard Ayer.

As I walked out the other day,
Through Concord street I took my way;
I saw a site I thought quite rare—
I Hill walked out to take the Ayer
And now since earth and air have met together,
I think there'll be a change of weather.

In Haverhill, Mass., August 2, 1829, Cotton K. Simpson to Miss Sarah R. Marble.

An old calculation of gain and loss
Proves "A stone that is rolling will gather no moss."
A happy expedient has lately been thought on,
By which a Marble may gather and cultivate Cotton.

Wedded, at Black Lake, S. L., February 9, 1828, James Anderson to Anna Bread.

While toasts the lovely graces spread,
And fops around them flutter,
I'll be contented with Ann Bread
And won't have any but her.

At Bozeah, Conn., August 24, 1816, John Bate, of Williamston, Mass., to Miss Mary Ann Bass, of the former after a courtship of one hour.

Is this not angling well, I ask,
Such tender bait to take?
He caught in one short hour a Bass!
The Bass, though, caught the Bate!

Married, at Winnlesburg on Friday, April 15, 1853, by Rev. Mr. Malone, at St. Peter's Church, Mr. Will Moon to Miss Annie Cooke:

He is not mad, though lunar light
His troth did overlook,
For he has gained, to his delight,
A wife that is a Cooke.
"His goose is cooked," and other maids
May envy her the boon,
Whose tall ambition wished and got
The bright man in the moon.

New York, March 10, 1832, Tomosa Secord to Miss Cordelia Ketcham:

"Ketcham, Cordelia, if you can;"
"I have," says she; "Secord's the man."

February 5, 1825, by Rev. McFarland, Solomon Payne to Miss Ruth Baker:

Some females fall in love with wealth,
Some with a lovely Swain;
But Sarah, in the bloom of health,
Takes to herself a Payne.

In Boston, April 8, 1821, Joseph Willent to Miss Susan Whitmarsh after a courtship of thirteen days and but thirty-five days after the death of his former wife:

The best way, it seems, for deep sorrow to smother
For the loss of a wife—is to marry another.

December 9, 1823, Stephen Bumprey, aged 76, a revolutionary pensioner, to Miss Sarah Dewey, aged 38.

"In '76 he fought and bled;
At 76 he wooed and wed."

Washington, D. C., May 17, 1834, Joshua Peck to Miss Amelia Bushel.

From sweet flowers the busy bee
Can scarce a drop of honey gather;
But, oh! how sweet a flower is she
Who turns to Honey altogether!

Captain Will Graves to Miss Nancy Graves, Corroll, Corroll County, N. C., June 15, 1815.

The graves, 'tis said,

WORKING THE TAILOR.

Original Scheme of a Philadelphia Swindler to Obtain a Suit of Clothes.

An ingenious swindle was recently worked successfully upon a Chestnut street druggist and a Chestnut street tailor, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. The criminal was a young man of intelligent address, whose somewhat shabby clothes were brushed clean and his boots polished. Entering the pharmacy he informed the proprietor that the tailor, whose name he gave, was suffering with dyspepsia, and had requested that some medicine be sent to him. The druggist ordered a prescription, and while it was being compounded entered into a chat with the stranger, who paid for the bottle of medicine, and, before taking it away, asked the druggist to have another vial ready, and said that the tailor would call for it in a day or two. Then the swindler went to the tailor and ordered a suit of clothes, the price of which was fifty dollars. He wanted the garments made up in a hurry, and they were ready for him two days afterward. He put them on in the store and left his back-number suit to be sent to a fictitious address. "My friend," he said to the tailor (giving the name of the druggist) "has some money of mine, and if you will walk down there I will pay the bill." The tailor and the artful dodger reached the pharmacy. "I perceive that we are all acquainted," the swindler said as they shook hands. "Now," he continued, speaking to the druggist, "give Mr. —— what I left here for him and excuse me for a moment." With that he slipped out of a side entrance and the druggist handed the tailor a vial wrapped in the customary white paper. "What do I want with this?" asked the sartorial artist. "That," responded the master of the pharmacopœnia, "is what your friend said you were to get here." "Not at all!" the tailor ejaculated. "I understood that you have the cash for the clothes that he got from me." They stared each other in the face for thirty seconds and made a simultaneous break for the door through which the mutual friend had disappeared. But he was not in sight.

THE POTATO CROP IN IRELAND.

Reports as to the actual condition of the potato crop in Ireland are conflicting, but unquestionably the potato crop is short and there will be suffering in consequence. A commissioner of the Scotsman has investigated matters, and finds that the seaboard of West Cork has suffered more from the potato blight than the inland part of the country in which latter place the crop was better than he had been led to expect. He was positively assured that in certain inland districts the farmer had not a single potato fit to eat, but on investigating found that there was a sound crop of potatoes but greatly below the average yield. In Kerry a close inspection of the crop did not corroborate the alarming statements he had heard. When the potatoes were dug out for examination, he found them almost everywhere below an average yield. As a rule there appeared to be from one-half to two-thirds of an average crop. Very few potatoes were touched with disease. The commissioner visited those parts of Tipperary, Limerick and Clare which were reported to have suffered badly, and he found there a similar state of affairs to what he had seen in Kerry. In the great majority of cases there appeared to be from one-half to two-thirds of an average crop, "with but little actual disease." "The entire failure of the crop was a rare exception." It appears that the prospect of famine is not as bad as has been represented, but it appears equally true that there will be suffering. With people who have no reserve to fall back on the difference between crop shortage and total failure is that they will require less assistance. But what must we think of a condition wherein the people are so poor that even a shortage of the crop means direful consequences.

THE UNITED STATES ELECTIONS.

The Republicans err in urging an "off year" and fraud as accounting for their defeat. The cause lies deeper. Such reasons as these do not account for a defeat so overwhelming both in point of universality and of majorities. If the Republicans stayed at home, it was to an extent never known before. If there was fraud, it was conducted on a scale never known before. The more reasonable presumption is, that Republican votes helped to swell the Democratic majorities, and that McKinleyism, the Force Bill and the Farmer's Alliance were the predisposing causes.

The doctrine of free trade has made immense headway in the States since two years ago, and in the marking up of prices by the mercantile community since the passage of the McKinley bill, it received fresh impetus. It is not likely that the Republicans lost any states through the action of merchants demanding increased value for their goods, but unquestionably the effect was to swell the Democratic majority. A measure whose immediate effect was to enhance the cost of living without in the least contributing to increase wages could not but prove an effectual electioneering card for the Democrats. To what extent the Farmers' Alliance contributed to Republican defeat is not so clear, for we on this side of the line not feeling any especial interest in local issues, have not studied the causes which gave rise to this formidable organization. That, however, the Republicans are largely indebted to the Alliance for their overthrow is more than certain. Farming no longer pays, and matters could be no worse with free trade in operation. The farmers very properly argue that if they must sell cheap they must buy cheap, besides, they have reached the conclusion that dressed beef combines, which have forced beef on foot down to a cent and a half a pound, together with other organizations more or less scoundrelly in character, and which seem to have the ear of the Republican leaders, must go. The farmers, particularly of the west, are not less Republican than they were two years ago, but to procure the legislation they want requires that they be represented by men after their own hearts. In other words the furtherance of their interests required a change in the personnel of congress.

Free traders must not crow, however. Moral victories are comforting, but they are not as filling as practical success. The United States senate is still Republican, and in consequence, no change can be effected in the fiscal policy of the country for two years. If two years hence trade should be brisk, development going on apace, and above all wages good, the Democrats themselves will find the tariff a delicate question to handle. And what promises to help the Republicans out is the probability of the Southern Democracy advocating protection as their war cry. In the Southern States sundry manufacturing interests are being developed, and in proportion that these gather significance with the lapse of time, in just that proportion will they want to be protected. We should not be surprised to see the doctrine of protection in full blast in the South two years hence. At all events, a fiscal policy which should meet the requirements of a country so vast as the United States is simply out of the question. We do not anticipate that McKinleyism will stand, but it is not at all likely that free trade will prevail. We should rather suppose that a compromise will be sought in reciprocity on the lines proposed by BLAINE. But, however that be, if the country derive no practical benefit from the recent Democratic victory, the Republicans will have learned a lesson. They will at last have been made to perceive that their war record will avail them nothing as the exponents of monopoly.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The TIMES does not believe in National Policy, but it does believe that what is sauce for the manufacturing goose should be sauce for the laboring gander. The TIMES wants to see the politicians consistent in their doctrine. It is not fair that one class should be protected and another class left to shift for themselves. The removal of the per capita tax would perhaps be the best thing that could happen this province in the long run. Two thousand additional Chinese on Vancouver Island would displace that number of whites. The whites could not and would not undertake to compete against them, and there would be a general exodus to the States. What would be the effect. Fisguard street would go up and Government street would go down. Not a few who are now doing a profitable business in dry goods and groceries would find themselves with occupation gone. Two thousand additional Chinese to this Island would bring about the suspension of half a dozen hotels in this city and the street car line would not pay expenses. This condition reached, Government street would howl as loudly for a per capita tax on the laborer. We may suppose even that the Colonist would have to change its tune. If, therefore, we must have an ocular demonstration of the depressing effect unrestricted Chinese immigration would have on this city before the Colonist can be convinced of the error of its ways, the sooner it comes the better. Let the per capita tax be abrogated! If the Colonist can stand the material development of Fisguard street at the expense of Government street, so can the TIMES. Hurrah for Chinese cheap labor!

TO PORT ANGELES.

The Special Excursion by the Steamer Olympian on Sunday Next.

Messrs. Bourchier, Croft, and Mallette have arranged an excursion to Port Angeles for next Sunday, Nov. 9th, which will leave Turner Beeton & Co's wharf at 9:30 a. m., and returning leave Port Angeles at four in the afternoon. The palatial steamer Olympian has been chartered for the occasion, so that a rapid and pleasant trip can be made, and ample time will be allowed the excursionists to see the new county seat of McClallum county, Washington, for such, as the result of the recent elections, Port Angeles has become. As the passage only occupies an hour and a half, those who take this trip will be in Victoria before supper time. If the weather on Sunday is pleasant, a good time may be anticipated.

It seems the American made use of an epithet which reflected on the maternity of the young Englishman, and this roused the ire of the latter, and justly so, to fighting pitch.

A FEAST OF MUSIC DIVINE.

Lovers of Music Should not Fail to Hear the Mendelssohn Quintette Club.

The Mendelssohn Quintette, like everything else, undergoes changes with time, but it has the recommendation that it does not deteriorate with age. In some respects it improves. It has always been a favorite with the the musical community of every centre of population which they visit. 'Twould have been surprising, therefore, did they not meet with a hearty reception at the Victoria last evening. It was a music loving gathering pure and simple that greeted them, and they opened to their hearers with a quintette in F, Opus 63, Franz Ries. This was prettily artistic, but it formed only the prelude to better things to come. Miss Marie Barnard is a vocalist of great promise, with a voice full of rich and divine music; flexible to a degree. Then there is a peculiar gracefulness and ease about her method which makes it a pleasure to listen to her. In the lower register she is superb, in the upper she is exquisite, and in both she is musical, sweet and attractive. She has a dash of originality in rendition, which, while musically accurate, gives a distinctive charm not often observed in vocalists of classical music. As a rule they are coldly correct; Miss Barnard is charming in the most difficult passages. She sang in Italian "Cosi fan tutte," that language of music, with flute obligato, and made a pronounced sensation. She responded to an invitation to repeat it, and stormed the hearts of the audience by singing in English. In the second part of the programme she sang Bellinghi's "Profumi Orientali," the conclusion of which was the signal of as genuine an outburst of applause as ever rang through the walls of the theatre. Miss Barnard came back and sang "The Mocking Bird" with such charm, grace and originality as to render another encore positively necessary to satisfy the audience. It was almost cruel to bring her back, but with sweet good nature she consented.

Mr. Paul Jennison followed with a fantasie for the violoncello, "La fille du Regiment," in which he presented the instrument to many with unthought of capabilities under a master hand.

The next and concluding gem of the first part was Mr. Paul Henneberg's effort with the flute. No one is perfect, but it is not advisable to say that any one is, but Mr. Henneberg's execution is as nearly perfect as possible. He is a marvellously expert and brings music out of the driest and most technical passages.

One may not care a button for the piece which he is playing, yet one feels irresistibly attracted by the wondrous execution. Of course he was recalled, and recalled with a warmth that was irresistable.

Mr. Thomas Ryan opened the second part with "La Reconciliation" arranged in a fantasie for the clarinette, which was very acceptably rendered.

Mr. Isidor Schnitzler is a violinist who lives in his instrument, from which he extracts, not wonderful perhaps, but remarkably good music. His bow is clear and decisive and his general execution deserving of recommendation. Perhaps he deserves all the more praise from the fact of his "e" string broke in a most critical moment, and seemingly without noticing it he played on the other string and finished the piece. He should be heard to-night again by those who were not present last evening; in fact the whole community should have the attendance of every lover of good music in the city.

A CAST AWAY INDIAN.

On an Inhospitable Shore Six Days and Nights---Rescued by the Boscowitz.

A passenger from the north on the Boscowitz, relates the story of an Indian's rescue, as follows:

Wednesday morning October 29th, the Boscowitz left Inverness and arrived at Metlakahtla about nine o'clock, left Metlakahtla about noon and made for the Naas River. A little before six o'clock, about ten miles up Naas straits, while supper was being served, the Indians on board heard shouts of distress, which they said came from a man floating on the bottom of a canoe. After some time the captain was told of it, when he at once gave orders to about ship and steamed in the direction of the cries. When the vessel got within half a mile of the shore, a canoe was lowered and a crew of Indians put on board her, and they at once went off in the direction indicated by the cries. After an absence of about 15 minutes, the canoe returned with a half dead Indian, of the name of Humpy George, having only an undershirt and a blanket round him. After being supplied with some dry underclothing, and a dry blanket, he was able to speak a little, and he was supplied with some hot tea, also a modicum of spirits which some kind Christian ferreted out of his supplies. He then managed, bit by bit, to relate the following story: About a week ago, he had left the Naas all alone with his canoe, (a large and fine one) to return to the Skeena. He had only got down about 20 miles or so, when, it being very dark and stormy, he made for the shore. He got on to a rough and rocky part of the beach, and before he knew where he was the canoe was broken up and he had to make the best of his way to the shore. When found he had been six days and nights on the beach. He had made a raft, with which he had been trying to cross the river, as canoes hardly ever came down on that side of the river, but he had got the raft stranded and his raft was high and dry. His escape was a narrow one, as the Boscowitz intended to go to Fort Simpson before going to the Naas, and only took the Naas first on account of the Danube having gone into Fort Simpson. He would not have been able to do anything for himself if he had been exposed for another night, and most likely would have succumbed altogether. Shortly after being taken on board, he was seen crying, and on being asked why he cried, he said it was because he felt so bad about his wife having left him and gone away with another man. It would appear that his wife, who is known by the high-sounding name of Mable, is rather a smart Indian woman and a good cook, and that he and his wife were making a comfortable living at the Forks of the Skeena by keeping a restaurant. Unfortunately for him, Mabel took a fancy for a white man and left her husband, Humpy George, and ever since he has been in trouble.

IS JAMES LEONARD HERE?

He Unaccountably Deserts His Wife and Child, Leaving no Trace Behind.

BALLARD, Nov. 6.—James Leonard, who has for sometime been the Ballard agent of the Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern Railroad, secured a leave of absence and went to Victoria. Before doing so, however, he wrote to his wife, who was visiting friends outside of the city, that he was going to leave her, but gave no reason for his sudden and startling resolve. Mrs. Leonard and her child, 1½ years old, returned at once to Ballard, and awaited her husband's return. He came back from Victoria in a day or two, and when confronted by his wife with the strange letter, said he didn't mean it, and was sorry he had alarmed her. So the matter dropped.

Last Friday Leonard resigned his position of agent and William Davies was appointed in his stead, after the books and affairs were inspected and found all right.

Saturday morning Leonard appeared at the office of Lily, Bogardus & Co., foot of University street, and paid Mr. Lily, of whom he had rented a house in Ballard for a year past, a month's rent in advance.

Mr. Lily said he wondered at Leonard coming into town to pay the rent, as it had always been sent in promptly by money order, and asked him how it was that he could leave the station. Leonard said he had secured another fellow to take his place. Being further pressed with questions by Mr. Lily, who remarked that he was all dressed up for a trip, Leonard said:

"Yes, I'm going to have a little trip, and I guess I'll go over to Victoria for a while."

To the query as to whether he had resigned, Leonard gave an evasive answer and prevented further questions in that line, and Mr. Lilly gave the matter no further thought until he found that Mrs. Lilly had called a short time after, and that a telegram about Leonard had been forwarded to friends in the city inquiring about Leonard.

Mrs. Leonard, who is left alone with a baby and is unprovided for beyond the month's rent paid in advance for the use of her home, again came to the city Monday and made numerous inquiries about her missing husband, whom she fears has left her for good. The poor woman is nearly heartbroken, and while she makes no complaint of abuse on the part of her husband, yet she cannot account for the strange letter he sent her, his queer conduct since his return from Victoria, and his present unexplained absence.

James Leonard is about 26 years old, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, well built, dark complexioned, has light brown hair and a mustache of the same color.

The affair has caused quite a sensation at Ballard, some of the neighbors intimating that Leonard has tranferred his affections to another woman, while a few fear that he has met with foul play, there being no known cause for his absence, or even for his resignation of the position of agent.

Change in Business.

The extensive business of Van Volkenburgh Bros., butchers, cattle raisers and dealers, has been purchased by Messrs. R. P. Rithet, Capt. Jno. Irving, and Ellis & Cawston. The butcher shops of the firm, as well as the large ranches in the upper country have been taken over. It is reported that Messrs. Ellis & Cawston will look after the interior branch, while the local business will be conducted by a manager here.

EFFECTS OF HASHISH.

It Often Brings Hallucinations the Reverse of Pleasant.

A Patient Who Imagined Her Body Divided in Half After Taking a Dose of Indian Hemp--Remarkable Fancies of a Physician.

That cannabis Indica, or Indian hemp, when taken in certain doses produces pleasant dreams and fancies is a fact well known in the East, where under the name of hashish it is frequently given before battle by chieftains to their followers, in order to destroy their fear and fill them with supernatural frenzy. The dreamy Turk indulges in it, owing to the delightful fancies it creates; but this does not hold true for the more practical nations. In the more civilized countries of the West, Indian hemp does not always produce pleasant hallucinations—in fact, says the New York Sun, they are often disagreeable. One lady, after its administration, imagined her body divided in half, the lower portion running away. Under the dreadful apprehension that life would cease if they were not quickly reunited, she gave chase to the seceding lower half. Whether she caught it or not I do not know, but sleep or consciousness probably supervened, as she is well to-day.

A Mrs. R., of Baltimore, was similarly affected. She imagined her toes leaving her one by one; then her lower limbs; her fingers, forearms, arms and lower part of her trunk followed, and just as her heart was struggling to escape she awoke.

These dreams were undoubtedly terrible on account of the innate fear of death. The illusion, etc., however, may be neither pleasing nor displeasing, only inconvenient. A certain gentleman susceptible to the drug walked a distance of ten miles or more, visited several friends, acting rationally all the time, but without the slightest knowledge of what he had done. He was surprised on finding himself at the extreme end of the city without knowing how he got there. When he subsequently learned of the visits he made, carrying on conversation in a natural manner, appearing only a trifle dull, he could scarcely believe it.

Another man, when under its influence, knew what he was doing, but had no idea of distance. This was the cause of many amusing incidents and nearly an accident. After having collided with a number of men, women and ash barrels he started to cross a street and went directly into the middle of a horse car, which he imagined a half block away. Some kind gentleman, seeing his plight, and thinking him either blind or drunk, offered his escort home, which service was accepted.

A well-known doctor says of his experience:

"I had been troubled with persistent headache, and hearing cannabis Indica might be of service, I took some, accidentally an overdose. Dinner was just over, and I was sitting in my study room reading a surgical treatise. After an hour or so of reading the letters seemed to rise from the paper and, growing larger and larger, would melt away together, leaving the page a perfect blank. Thinking my eyes were at fault, I rubbed them and started to read again. The same thing was repeated, and closing my eyes for a moment, the delusion commenced.

"I heard music and drumming as if in the distance, and looking in the direction from whence it seemed to come I saw soldiers dressed in gala uniform, preceded by bands playing the most delicious melodies. As they approached the music became more and more distinct, until they passed before me in review.

"They were all tall, muscular fellows, at least six foot two, some mounted, most on foot. Some were dressed like the Russian Hussars of the guard, with scarlet trousers and Hessian boots and huge bear-skin caps; their white furred and embroidered dolmans hanging gracefully from their shoulders as they rode by. Others were like the various body-guards of different nations, dressed with steel breastplates and barred helmets. Some resembled the old Hungarian life guards, all scarlet, with dress coats and beaver caps. Others like the cuirassiers, the lancers, the dragoons and the chasseurs a cheval. Some had high plumed hats, and gun in saddle, like the Wellington Life Guards of England; and others were in the gay uniforms of Spain and Italy.

"There were soldiers of times mediæval and modern. There were warriors from Greece, with their bared limbs, white skirts and drooping fezzes, carrying scimetars and Arabian guns. Then came some uniformed like the soldiers of India, Tartary and China. Many were dressed as the ancient Greeks and Romans. Some had the gaudy costumes of Persia; others were simply clad, like those of Carthage. Then came soldiers of the middle ages armed cap-a-pie on helmeted chargers bearing heavy lances and escutcheoned shields. Then followed an interval of naked Nubians, black as night, with eyes like fire.

"After these marched those whom I admire so much—no display, but in plain and modest gray—our own sunburnt, swarthy warriors. The music, varying as the different soldiers passed to suit each nation's character, became fainter and fainter, until it died away in the distance. And then I awoke refreshed."

Falling from a Height.

In reference to an annotation in the Lancet upon this subject, a medical man, formerly a sailor, states that in youth he fell from the topgallant yard of a vessel, a distance of at least one hundred and twenty feet. Sensation was entirely lost during his transit through the air. It returned slightly on striking the water, sufficiently to enable the lad to strike out (being a good swimmer) and seize a life buoy. The writer thinks death would have been painless had he fallen on some hard substance; but the assertion that persons die in the act of falling is, he thinks, evidently wrong.

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

The McKinley Bill Believed to Have Been Disastrous to the Republican Party.

The fact of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and other New England States going Democratic this year is certainly a Waterloo for the Republican party. A defeat such as this in the stronghold of protection will no doubt have a depressing effect upon the Republican party in the doubtful states. The question is, who is responsible for this decided turn of affairs? Was it McKinley or Blaine? Have we not here another Roscoe Conklin affair? Had Mr. Conklin supported Blaine it is now conceded Mr. Blaine would have been elected by a large majority. Had Blaine supported the McKinley Bill the Republican party would have carried everything before them. Nevertheless we are not in favor of the McKinley Bill. Had Bill McKinley been able to see the effect of his McKinley Bill in the same light that we of Victoria view it, or had he come to Victoria, and had a pair of Mr. Seward's celebrated spectacles adjusted to his short-sighted eyes, he would have been able to see clear through the election. He would have found Mr. Seward's office at the corner of Yates and Douglas streets, and although he may be Bill McKinley, of McKinley Bill fame, he would be obliged to await his turn at Mr. Seward's busy office. Mr. Seward is going east in a few weeks, and will probably call on Bill McKinley to suggest as a substitute for the McKinley Bill a bill of reciprocity.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

OPENING OF THE RENEWED CHURCH ON SUNDAY.

Venerable With Years and Blessed by Good Works—The Improvements Made—Dr. Cochrane, of Brantford, Ontario, to Preach.

On the sixteenth day of this month it will have been 27 years since the First Presbyterian church was dedicated to the good work in which it has ever since been engaged. It was then a venture, thrown out with prayerful hope of success, and to-day shows that the hope has been bountifully blessed. The place where the building still stands was then comparatively with now a wilderness; to-day it is a centre for the homes of many prosperous citizens, whose cosy dwellings surround it. Victoria has grown since then, and in the fulfillment of the fitness of things, both church and congregation have grown. It was the pioneer of Presbyterianism in this city, and it has ably held its own.

About seven years ago, it will be remembered, the church was burned down and had to be almost rebuilt. It was then enlarged to about 30x70 and the additional space served up till last year when it was found necessary either to build a new church or enlarge the old one. As the latter course was capable of being adopted without plunging the congregation into debt, the improvements that are now completed were undertaken. The additional space provided was 20 x 40 feet on either side by the construction of two gables. This gives the interior not only a more spacious, but a more comfortable and ecclesiastical appearance, it formerly appearing more like an ordinary hall. The gallery at the rear has been taken down, and a new one, ten feet wider, been built, thus adding considerably to the seating room there. Both down stairs in the body of the church and also up in the gallery, the pews have been altogether re-modelled, re-upholstered, and rendered more comfortable in every respect. Indeed, it will be on the whole the coziest church in the city. The needs of the choir have not been forgotten; they have not yet been given a good organ, no doubt that will come in time, but they have been made as comfortable as possible. The policy of the trustees is conservative; they look to the possibilities of the future rather than to the apparent necessities of the present, and in time their policy will be rewarded. The schoolroom has been considerably enlarged, and a library, ladies' room, class room, pastor's study and kitchen have been provided by the redistribution of space. In the church proper is seating accommodation for about 650 people comfortably placed, and the school room has a capacity for about 250 or 400.

The outside railing that has for so many years enclosed the ground is being demolished, and will be replaced by neat posts and chains. The church is taking the initiative in a reform that promises to be carried out in Victoria. People have been two anxious to hide away from the public gaze, behind unsightly fences, their pleasant flower gardens. This policy of "it's mine; I paid for it and I've an exclusive right to it" is being done away with in favor of one more generous.

SUNDAY'S CEREMONY.

Sunday's ceremony will therefore mark the third stage in the existence of the First Presbyterian church in Victoria, and it is anticipated that the celebration of the fourth stage will be the inauguration of a handsome new building erected by a congregation that has steadily grown and prospered.

The choir are making special preparations for the musical part of the service, the sermon at which will be preached by a man known throughout Canada as one of the shining lights of Presbyterianism. Rev. Dr. Cochrane is a man brimful of concentrated energy; an author of considerable repute; a lecturer of high standing; a preacher of considerable power; a platform speaker whose force of argument and logic has made him widely known; a pastor whose flock is devotedly attached to him—in a word a man the scope of whose ability is remarkable. He is an extensively traveled man, and a scholar among the scholars not only of the church to which he devotes his energies, but among men generally. Dr. Cochrane founded a ladies' college in Brantford, which has turned out several brilliant lady scholars, and he is at the same time the pastor of Zion church, Brantford, with a membership of nearly 700.

He will preach at both morning and evening services. In the afternoon a special service for children will be held in the body of the church, when addresses will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Reid and Rev. Mr. Macleod. On Monday evening there will be an entertainment, preceded from 6 to 8 o'clock by a social tea in the school room. Dr. Cochrane, Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge, Rev. Mr. Macleod, Rev. Mr. Watson, and Rev. Mr. Rugg will speak briefly between the musical items. Tuesday evening will be devoted to a lecture by Rev. Dr. Cochrane on "Burns and Scottish Songs." Is there any individual rash enough to say that such a subject, treated by Dr. Cochrane, will not draw a crowded audience? The lecture will be suitably interspersed by Scottish songs.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILLORS

Meet and Go Through the Usual Weekly Routine of City Business.

The aldermanic board met on Wednesday evening and transacted the usual routine business. His worship Mayor Grant presided at a full board.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From W. F. H. Bullen, enclosing account for water pipes.—Referred to the street and water commissioners.

From Alexander Cameron, threatening to sue the city if he didn't have the street graded as asked in a previous communication.

Considerable discussion followed, in which the action of any citizen writing a threatening letter to the council was condemned.

From W. C. Bryant, asking why he did not get a share of the horse shoeing city.—Referred to fire wardens.

Ald. Wilson said he was not advisable to change the horse shoeing all round, although the other blacksmithing was fairly distributed.

Ald. Harrison quite agreed with this, but did not think it right that strangers should get the choice of this work. He would recommend that Mr. Bryant get a share of it.

Ald. Wilson was not aware of who was doing this work, but thought that it was best to leave the matter in the hands of the head of the department.

From Mrs. Mary Droscovitz, asking for a reduction of taxes which at present are beyond her ability to pay.

His worship remarked that this lady had been before the court of revisors, and also about the council several times asking for a rebate of taxes. She was told that if she was not seeking charity she could be assisted, but this she denied. His idea of the case was that if a lady is assessed by this city at $56 a year, it means property worth at least $5,600, and the chances are that she would not take $8,000 or $9,000 for the same property. Now no woman who has got so much property should be unable to pay such a low tax, if the property is unincumbered, which, of course, had nothing to do with the city.

On motion of Ald. McKillican, it was resolved to instruct the city clerk to notify Mrs. Droscovitz that the council could not see its way clear to remit the taxes with consistency.

From James McEachran, applying for constableship on the suburban police force.—Referred to the superintendent and committee.

From A. Henderson, offering right of way through two portions of his property for the city sewer. Mr. Henderson wanted $500 for one strip and $750 for another. The matter was eventually referred to the sewerage committee, although some comment was made on the fact of people taxing the city for necessary improvements.

A communication was received from the sewerage committee, making several suggestions, for the consideration of which it was decided to have a special meeting Saturday evening.

Accounts to the amount of $5,416.25 were passed, and referred to the finance committee for approval and payment.

Ald. Smith rose to explain the nature of Bishop & Shelbourne's account. A mistake had occurred in giving the lines of corporation property on Pandora street, necessitating the expenditure of $150, through having to pull down the buildings after they had been partially erected.

The city surveyor stated that he had consulted the city books for the dimensions of this property, which was 155 x 180, and it was apparent to him that the 155 side fronted on Pandora street. The mistake having been called to his attention by Mr. Summerfield, he (Mr. Leach) proceeded to the registrar's office, and found that a mistake had really occurred.

The subject was then dropped.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

By Ald. Harrison at next weekly meeting of council; to introduce a by-law amending section 23 of the street by-law, providing that no person shall drive cattle sheep or pigs across any bridge in the city limits.

By Ald. Goodacre to amend the revenue bylaw 1889.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The street committee recommending that the application of Captain John Irving for water service to the C. P. N. wharf be granted.

Police committee enclosing new rules and regulations for the guidance of police officers and men, and recommending the appointment of a second sergeant for the day watch.

Fire wardens, recommending that the tenders for the deluge fire engine house be not accepted and that fresh tenders be called.

On motion of Ald. Vigelius this was assented to and the time extended to three weeks.

The library committee asking the council's approval of thre appointment of an assistant.

The several reports were adopted.

The mayor referred to the harbor drawbridge about which a number of complaints have been received. The promises made to the council have not been carried out, and that is scarcely fair, because at present the bridge is not opened at all promptly. The matter will have to be looked to as the property above the bridge is somewhat depreciated by the present course pursued towards boats.

The council rose at ten oclock.

It was Mr. Emerson who said "the first health is wealth," and it was a wiser than the modern philosopher who said that "the blood is the life." The system, like the clock, runs down. It needs winding up. The blood gets poor and scores of diseases result. It needs a tonic to enrich it.

A certain wise doctor, after years of patient study, discovered a medicine which purified the blood, gave tone to the system, and made men—tired, nervous, brain-wasting men—feel like new. He called it "his Golden Medical Discovery." It has been sold for years, sold by the million of bottles, and people found such satisfaction in it that Dr. Pierce, who discovered it, now feels warranted in selling it under a positive guarantee of its doing good in all cases.

Perhaps it's the medicine for you. Your's wouldn't be the first case of scrofula or salt-rheum, skin disease, or lung disease, it has cured when nothing else would. The trial's worth making, and costs nothing. Money refunded if don't do you good.

THE ISLANDER'S SUCCESSOR.

A New Fast Steamboat for the Victoria-Vancouver Route.

Passengers to and from the Mainland would miss, as a personal friend almost, the good and fast ship Islander were she to go down or be taken away. This will occur by the time another year rolls across the Straits, but her place will be taken by a boat larger, handsomer and faster. Captain John Irving says: "She may be a little ahead of the times, but she'll fit in more readily as the trade develops."

Already bids are offered for her construction and it is more than likely that the contract will be given out very shortly, probably before the end of the present month. In that case the new steamer would be ready by the end of 1891. She will have twenty staterooms double the size of the Islander's besides a large number of single ones and everything else will be in accordance with the improvements intended over the present boat. She will be of 5000 horse-power and will cost in all about $300,000. This is not a set figure, it being the intention not to stick at $50,000 for the sake of sacrificing any advantage or comfort. "We'll make the people feel as much at home on board her as though they were at home," says Capt. Irving, "and we don't want them to know that they are away from home at all when they're aboard her."

FROM THE NORTH.

Steamer Barbara Boscowitz Arrives—News From Northern Ports—Man Killed.

The steamer Barbara Boscowitz came into port Thursday evening from the north. She left the Skeena on the first inst., and stopped to load salmon at different points. The trip down was a very pleasant one, the wind being fair and the sea smooth. A large number of passengers came down, and a heavy freight was brought. Among this was 1500 cases of salmon from the N. P. C. Co., at Skeena; 4000 from the W. P. Co., Rivers Inlet; 1000 boxes from Hall's mill, Alert Bay; and 8000 feet lumber from Hartley Bay.

The death, by a gun accident, of a Japanese employed at Inverness cannery is reported. The deceased was formerly a sailor in the sealing schooner Penelope, was a native of Nogasaki, and 23 years of age. His name was S. Hashizumi. On the 17th of October he was taking a repeating shot gun out of a boat, muzzle first, and the piece was discharged, the 27 heavy shot in the charge going right through the man's breast, killing him instantly.

General Lyman E. Banks came down by the Boscowitz from Alert Bay. He reports boring operations still going on, but does not talk a great deal about what has been struck yet. It is believed, however, that the prospects are good.

A party of surveyors have been laying off a townsite on King's Island, this side of Bella Bella. Three houses are already built, and a hotel has been started. A township will soon spring up.

The C. P. N. Co's steamer Danube left the Naas last Friday for Queen Charlotte's Islands. On her return she was to load salmon at Skeena river points.

The weather for the past month has been very pleasant and warm, very little fog has been experienced.

The following passengers came down by the Boscowitz: J. J. Roe, J. Williams, Geo. Atchinson, J. H. King, T. H. Robinson, H. P. Collis, Barham, Geo. J. Cary, J. Mytler, C. Favor, J. Griffiths, Mrs. Chambers and son, H. Mallorp, Gen. Banks, H. C. Able, J. P. Bucham, C. Irving, H. Cayter, 17 Indians and one Chinaman.

Several Reasons Why.

Why is Northfield coal the best?
1. It is the hardest.
2. Gives a hotter fire and consumes the least fuel.
3. It does not clinker.
4. Free from stone and slate.
5. It makes a cheerful fire burning free and clear.

Kept at the Rock Bay coal yard whose prices will be found in another column.

Consignees per Bark Mennock.

The bark Mennock, from London, consigned to Messrs. Turner, Beeton & Co., which is expected in port to-night, has on board about 1,200 tons of cargo consigned to order Langley & Co., Boucherat & Co., H. Saunders, Angus & Gordon, W. Worth & Co., P. McQuade & Son, Henry Goward, Findlay, Durham & Brodie, Angus & Gordon, Dixi Ross, C. A. Holland, H. A. Sutherland, Vancouver City, Turner, Beeton & Co., Baker Bros., Naval Storekeeper, I. W. Powell, Mrs. G. Tovey, Welch, Rithet & Co.

It Won't Occur Again.

The damage done to the Vancouver water main is more serious than was anticipated. The great ocean steamer ran over the steel main and crushed it besides breaking one of the joints completely off. That settles the water supply as far as that particular pipe is concerned; but the steamer also ran foul of the iron main and crushed out fully eight feet of it. Captain John Irving has sent up three divers and a lot of apparatus to repair the damage. It is the intention now to place that pipe where if a steamer even does reach it she will have to stay below with it. A trench will be dug, in which the main will be sunk and covered over.

Terribly Lacerated.

Some time ago a large property owner threatened to close a little street leading from Pandora street along the south side of the Royal Hospital to Fernwood road. The threat was carried out a few days ago, but in a way that is contrary to law, and which has at last resulted fatally. A barb-wire fence was erected to obstruct the passing of horses and pedestrians, but no top rail was put on as is required by law. Yesterday morning a valuable young filley, either ran into or attempted to jump the fence, with results that will probably necessitate its shooting. All four legs were scratched, and one was almost cut through, the sinews being parted. Besides this, the poor animal had her throat badly cut. She was discovered in this condition early yesterday morning by a gentleman who was passing, and who tried to find an owner for the animal without success.

Early Sledding.

Yesterday morning a heavy white frost lay thick on the sidewalks, and a party of boys were out enjoying an improvised sled ride. A big dog was harnessed to a sled, and the boys took turns in riding, the dog seeming as interested in the fun as any of the youngsters.

Will Not Stand a Cut.

Civil salaries in Seattle are as a rule fairly good, but the recipients do not appear to think that they are over paid. The city clerk of Seattle has distinctly stated that he will not accept $1,800 a year, conceiving it too small. The chief of police has intimated that he will stand no decrease in his pay of $2000 per year.

Up For Sentence.

On Monday the 10th inst., Joseph Carter, John Greenwell, John Suggett, Arthur Bertoux, Stephen Melzer, and Basil Van Endrieche, who were at the recent special session of the assizes convicted of unlawfully besetting No. 5 shaft Wellington collieries, will appear at the court house before Chief Justice Begbie, who will then and there pass sentence upon them.

Bissell, 100 Government street, Victoria, B. C.

A New Departure.

In another column Marchant, Futcher & Co. announce the importation of a large and choice selection of Japan horticultural specimens. The shipment embraces 1,000 choice lily bulbs of assorted varieties, and hundreds of the plants, shrubs and trees peculiar to Japan. Rare camelias and chrysanthemium plants, sogo palms, peony roots, chestnut and persimmon trees are included in the collection, which will well repay an inspection. Marchant, Futcher & Co.'s enterprise in undertaking an importation of this sort, is most commendable.

Poor Old Chap.

A case which demands the attention of the charitable exists in the city. An old fellow, named Joe Rogers, who formerly worked for the corporation, is living, or existing, in a little shack near the corner of Cook and North Park street. He is totally without funds and needs help. The unfortunate part of the affair is that Rogers imagines that the city owes him $40 odd for labor. As a matter of fact the amount was garnisheed by a hotel keeper, and the money had to be paid into court by Treasurer Kent. Rogers fails to understand this, and tells people that the city officials are trying to cheat him. His condition is one which demands relief, although the near neighbors have for some days been giving him food, his larder is rather slim.

A Toronto Alderman.

Alderman Booth, of Toronto, left by this morning's Mainland boat after a brief visit to British Columbia's fair capital. Mr. Booth is a fair representative of the Queen city's wealth and prosperity, he being a typical alderman, portly, good-humored and good-natured. His visit was one purely of pleasure and it has afforded him a large supply of that commodity. Toronto municipal politics are the same as ever, he says; the espajanade and street railway question continuing to absorb all attention. The street car line the corporation hopes to take over early in the spring, but the city is determined not to part with its water front at any cost. The usual custom of a railway is to ask twice what they want and generally they get only their due.

Places to be Visited.

H. M. S. Warspite and Espiegle, which leave Esquimalt on Saturday the 8th inst., will make several stops on the coast on her way south. Since her arrival last summer, Admiral Hotham and his officers have made many friends, and their departure will be regretted by those who have been the recipients of the hospitality and courtesy of the officers of the Warspite. ## AT THE HILL.

A Delightful Day Draws a Large Crowd to see the Sports.

"The day must have been made to order" was the remark of several and the opinion of the majority of those who took a walk to Beacon Hill yesterday afternoon. The weather was indeed delightful and consequently there was a great deal of pleasure to be derived from the sports that were going on at the hill. The football game (association) between the young men of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches, obtained the attention of the majority. The teams played very stubbornly, the ball being kept going from one goal to another, without either team gaining an advantage. The Methodists claimed a goal, but it was not allowed, and after playing out the allotted time, each team had to be contented with a draw, which will be decided at some future date. To speak of any individual player is out of the question, as all played well and in a friendly manner, which was plainly noticeable by the way each and every player received his kick on the shins.

The scratch baseball game between teams picked up on the grounds, started some time before the football, but no sooner had the latter game commenced than the former lost its audience. The game, however, was full of fun, although no very brilliant plays were recorded. Geo. Keithley acted as umpire and kept up the spirits of the boys with his good humor, even where his decision was disputed, which however did not happen often.

Ferrin vs. Times.

The plaintiff will apply in chambers to-morrow morning for a postponement of the trial. The reason for the application is unknown.

Thanksgiving Services.

At the First Presbyterian church yesterday evening a thanksgiving service of prayer and praise was rendered, Rev. Donald Fraser delivering a brief address appropriate to the occasion.

A similar service was given at St. Andrews Presbyterian church in the morning, Rev. P. McF. Macleod officiating.

Difference in Time.

The city clocks seem to be out of concord. The Albion Iron Works whistle blows a few minutes before 12 o'clock, according to Redfern's time, and the noon strokes of the fire bell are sent in a few minutes either side of the other announcements of noon. Perhaps when the city hall clock is placed in position and gets down to work, more comity may be observed in "making eight bells."

A Welcome Arrival.

Rev. Father Brabant has returned from his visit to his native land, which he has not seen for 21 years. The rev. father is well known in this country for his heroic and self-sacrificing mission work, a souvenir of which he will carry to his grave from the wound given him by the Indian who shot him once. He is looking well and happy, and ready to re-commence his labors among his dusky flock. Rev. Father Menleman has also arrived to take part in the west coast Indian mission work. This is his first visit to this country.

An Eventful Voyage.

The British bark Mennock, 150 days from London, with a general cargo consigned to Turner, Beeton & Co., arrived at this port on Wednesday afternoon in charge of first mate Robertson. Captain Chalmers died at sea on Sept. 25th after a six weeks illness. When off the Horn a seaman fell from aloft and was hurt so badly that he died two day's later. Rough weather was experienced off the South American coast, and the bark lost her jibboom and had her long boat smashed. She is to come alongside Turner, Beeton & Co.'s wharf to discharge.

B. C. Medical Council.

The half-yearly meeting of the British Columbia Medical Council met in Vancouver on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, this week, when business of a general character was taken up, and examinations of candidates.

There were seven applicants, of whom the following passed a successful examination and were allowed to register as practitioners in this province: Dr. A. T. Watt, Victoria; Dr. Hall, Victoria; Dr. Rice, Nanaimo; Dr. Watson, Duncans; Dr. Foote, Victoria. Dr. Tunstall, Kamloops, was elected by the Medical Council to represent them on the Council of the University of B. C. After several matters were considered, the Council adjourned to meet in Victoria in May next.

Borne to the Grave.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Samuel Reid took place at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning from St. Joseph's Hospital direct to the cemetery. The funeral services were conducted at the hospital by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge and Rev. C. Watson, who also conducted the burial services at the grave. The deceased was laid alongside her father in the family plot.

All that was mortal of the late Paris Carter was laid to rest at Ross Bay Cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral left the residence of Mr. Johnson, son-in-law of the deceased, at 2:30 and proceeded to the Pandora Street Methodist church, where services were conducted by Rev. C. Watson, who referred briefly to the fact that the old gentleman had evidently died of a broken heart over the death of his wife.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Electric.

Free Pullman tourist cars, and free reclining chair cars to Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago, without change. Steamers leave Victoria daily (except Sunday.) For tickets to any point east, north and south, call on or address Morris J. Bissell, 100 Government St., Victoria, B. C.

Was Well Satisfied.

Mr. Hilbert from Nanaimo was here yesterday, looking after his business in this city. In a conversation he said that he was well satisfied with the way his boot and shoe stock at 74 Yates is being cleared out. He wishes to thank the public for their liberal patronage. Before leaving he gave Mr. Myers instructions to clear out all he can this week and ship the balance of the stock to Nanaimo Monday. Anybody in want of bargains in boots and shoes will do well to call before it is too late, 74 Yates street, between Government and Broad. Nov.4. 4t

Only Two Cases.

From the appearance of the police court dock this morning, it was plainly evident that Thanksgiving Day in Victoria is celebrated as it should be, and not boisterously. Billy, an Indian who had been in the cells since Wednesday night, paid $25 and $1 costs, for having an intoxicant in his possession. W. Edwards, an old offender in the larceny line, pleaded guilty to having broken open a valise in the Colonial hotel, and received six months in the common jail.

Gone Wrong.

A young man named A. Findlay, who has lately been employed by Messrs. Richardson & Heathorn, importers and dealers, Yates street, has left the city under a cloud. His liabilities are considerable, and there is a shortage of $400 in his accounts with the firm. His downfall is attributed to a longing to lead a fast life, and his income was exceeded in his efforts to live above his means. He has left a recently married wife behind him, who is totally unprovided for.

Requested to Move.

A few days ago a house on the corner of Blanchard and View streets, was rented by parties who immediately installed themselves therein, and began a course of life not compatible with morality and virtue. Officer Hawton, hearing of this, paid the place a visit and mildly but firmly requested the occupants to move to some other locality, as the presence there of such a house was not desired by the immediate neighbors. The parties promised to move, and if they do not do so at once further action will be taken.

The Golden Sheaf.

The cantata of the "Golden Sheaf" was very excellently rendered last evening by a choir of children of the Pandora street Methodist church under the direction of Mr. F. G. Richards, jr. The church was crowded, and all enjoyed themselves immensely, the absence of a stiff formality in the programme being one of its chief virtues. The reading desk and choir stand were very handsomely decorated, the motto "For the Golden Sheaf unto God give thanks," being beautiful. After the cantata a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Richards, who had by his attention made the same a success. Several ladies and gentlemen belonging to the congregation gave very pleasing vocal and instrumental selections.

Victoria Theatre.

An amateur performance of "Meg's Diversion" and "Ruth's Romance" will be given at the Victoria Theatre, on Wednesday next, the proceeds to go to the building fund of the new Church of England Cathedral. Both comedies are thoroughly rehearsed and stage managed by Mr. Frederic Adderly, which in past times has been a guarantee of attention to detail and a good performance. The following is the full cast of characters:
